19 contestants to vie for National Sweetheart title this weekend

Nineteen young women will vie this year for the honor of being named the National Sweetheart.

Preliminary rounds of the pageant will be held at 7 p. m. Friday and Saturday, followed by the finals at 7 p.m. Sunday, all at the McFerren Park Civic Center.

Contestants, first runners up at their state pageants, will compete in evening gown, swim suit and talent.

This year's National Sweetheart hopefuls include:

Chera-Lyn Cook, 20, representing Kentucky. Cook, a senior at Eastern Kentucky University with a double major in psychology and sociology, plans to go into private practice, focusing on child therapy. She will sing "When a Man Loves a Woman" during talent competition.

Heidi York, 21, of Ohio. The journalism major at Ohio State University hopes to become a network news anchor and will perform "Once in a Lifetime" as a vocal selection as her talent.

Angela Anne Reed, 21, representing Oregon. Reed attends Warner Pacific College, majoring in human development/elementary education. She will sing "On My Own" during the talent competition.

Jill Marie Patzner, 21, of Wisconsin. Patzner is an environmental biology major at St. Mary's University of Minnesota who plans to become an attorney specializing in environmental law. In talent competition, she will sing "Wishing You Were Somehow Here Again."

Monique E. Hyatt, 20, representing Arizona. She is an elementary education major at Arizona State University and plans to become a school teacher, counselor and principal after graduation. She will perform a gymnastics/dance routine to "Stuff Like That There" during talent competition.

Jennifer Alvarez, 24, of Florida, a health services administration major at the University of Central Florida.
